

NOTICE OF RISK

When children from multiple families attend a single EarlyON centre to participate in outdoor programming there is an increased risk of the COVID-19 virus being transmitted.

Children who are infected with the COVID-19 virus are more likely than adults to have very mild infections or to have no symptoms at all, but these children can still transmit the infection to other children and to adults at the EarlyON program. This means that children can bring home an infection acquired at the EarlyON program and put other persons at risk.

This EarlyON Program has a screening process to help detect infections when there are symptoms; however, this screening process will not detect infected children or adults who do not have symptoms at the time of screening.

The risk of serious COVID-19 infection increases with age, which older staff and family members should consider in terms of the risk to themselves personally.

Please remember to check (✓) the sign-in sheet upon arrival to indicate that you have read this notice of risks.

Thank you!
